Bulk SMS Sender is a software tool which helps you send text messaged from your computer to several number at a time, through your mobile modem. The installation process is a breeze and upon finalizing it, you are brought face to face with a clean and simple UI. It contains a quick access toolbar, a ribbon and a panel to display details. Although the interface is quite intuitive, the process you have to perform in order to send SMSs is a tad confusing. Nevertheless, the developers have included a "How to use this software" file, so as to help you use the program to its full potential. In order to send messages, you have to create a TXT file with the phone numbers that interest you, upload it to Bulk SMS Sender, type in the message and click the "Start Sending SMS". The main window displays all the numbers present in your text file and their status, so that you can easily see to which people you have to resend the message. Aside from that, this software app enables you to cut, copy and paste elements from the SMS, as well as save all your data to the hard drive as a SMS file, or print it. The computer's performance will not be affected in any way by this utility, as the CPU and memory usage is low, even when sending text messages to the entire list. To conclude, Bulk SMS Sender proves to be a pretty decent piece of software for sending bulk SMSs, with a good response time and simple-to-use environment, yet it could benefit greatly from an update. The Obama administration has managed to put an end to the fact that immigrants who've served in the U.S. armed forces will have to leave the country when they return to their home countries. Now, the government is ready to start sending them home. "Citizens of Iraq and Afghanistan who have served with our military and are scheduled to receive an honorable discharge will be granted expedited entry," John F. Kerry, the secretary of state, said. The decision is the latest from the administration that will grant those who've served, "expedited" or "immediate" status, meaning they'll be able to travel to their home countries. The move marks the second time the White House has made a change to the status of those who've served. Some 2,600 members of the Army and Marines have been given the expedited status so far. It was granted to most of them in November. But it was put on hold after the Nov. 13 terror attacks in Paris that killed 130 people and prompted the U.S. to change the way it manages foreign fighters. The changes that came with the Paris attacks required all travelers to go through additional screenings, starting with a domestic transit interview, then a "derogatory information" interview and finally a review of their travel documents.
